

Study of Women in Asia Fellowship Guidelines

The Study of Women in Asia Fellowship supports one graduate student from any discipline whose research concerns women in Asia, broadly defined. This award provides three quarters of TGR tuition plus three quarters of stipend at $5,000. Additional support may be available on a case-by-case basis as funding allows.

- Stanford graduate students in any discipline conducting research on topics concerning women in Asia are eligible to apply.
- The fellowship may be used to support graduate coursework*, research on campus or abroad, or dissertation write-up.
- Applicants may be U.S. citizens or international students.

Students taking graduate coursework that will apply towards their degree will need to make up the difference between TGR tuition and full enrollment rates.

Application Instructions:

1. Complete your Women in Asia online application on solo.stanford.edu, including upload of Statement of Purpose (max. 2 pages single spaced) and unofficial transcripts.
2. Request one recommendation letter from a relevant faculty member (via online application system)

* Tuition only up to the TGR rate will be granted – students taking graduate coursework that will apply towards their degree will need to make up the difference in tuition rates on their own.
