

BOOK LAUNCH AND READING BY NAYANIKA MOOKHERJEE

NAYANIKA MOOKHERJEE READER OF SOCIO-CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY DURHAM UNIVERSITY

Book Launch and reading by Nayanika Mookherjee from her recently published book: The Spectral Wound. Sexual Violence, Public Memories and the Bangladesh War of 1971 (2015).

Nayanika Mookherjee is a Reader of Socio-Cultural Anthropology in Durham University. She has published extensively on her research interests: anthropology of violence, gendered violence during wars, ethics and aesthetics. Recent publications include The Spectral Wound. Sexual Violence, Public Memories and the Bangladesh War of 1971 (Foreword by Veena Das, Duke University Press, 2015), guest editing the special issue on Aesthetics, Politics, Conflict (Journal of Material Culture, 2015), 'The self in South Asia' (Journal of Historical Sociology, 2013) and co-editing (with Christopher Pinney, 2011) the JRAI (Journal of Royal Anthropological Institute) Special Issue: 'The aesthetics of nation'. Currently she is finishing her manuscript 'Arts of Reconciliation' (contracted with Stanford UP). As a British Academy fellow, her new research is on transnational adoption and conflict.

MONDAY
NOVEMBER 16, 2015
3:30 - 5:00 PM
BUILDING 50, 51A

Co-sponsored by the Center for South Asia