

Evidence for Action

Investigator-Initiated Research to Build a Culture of Health

We are pleased to announce the launch of Evidence for Action: Investigator-Initiated Research to Build a Culture of Health, a National Program of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, based at the Center for Health and Community at the University of California, San Francisco.

Evidence for Action supports investigator-initiated research to develop the evidence base needed to build a national Culture of Health—in which everyone has the opportunity to live their healthiest life possible. We will fund innovative studies on the impact programs, policies, and partnerships can have on health and well-being, with a particular focus on research that will advance health equity. To achieve our goals, we will work with researchers both within and outside the traditional health sectors.

Our first Call for Proposals (CFP) will be released on June 1st. We invite you to join us for a webinar on Wednesday, June 3rd at 10:30AM PT/1:30PM ET to learn more about the program and CFP.

Program leaders will introduce Evidence for Action, elaborate on the CFP, describe the grant application process, and answer questions.
